

BeFRAIL

WEBINAR SERIES 2025

15.04

Reflections on ethical issues in the study of human bones | Linda Melo

23.04

Ethics Around the Creation and Use of 3D Printed Human Remains: Toward the Ethical Use of Technology in Forensic Anthropology | Rachael Carew

29.04

A different way of thinking: ethical approaches to taphonomically altered human remains | Kirsty Squires

09.05

Fundamentals of Archaeological Evidence and the Quest for Transdisciplinarity: From Misconceptions to Improving Methodological Omnivorism | Monika Milosavljević

14.05

Biopolitics, Burials and the Bioethics of Care | Pamela L. Geller

20.05

Miyeu wiichayhtoowuk as Decolonial Research Practice: Modelling Ancestry and Biological Affinities Relationally | Sadie Tremblay

Confronting the Ethical and Cultural Dimensions of Bioarchaeological Research in Kalaallit Nunaat | Sara Næss Elleskov

27.05

Human Remains as 'Conflict Antiquities' and How Bioarchaeology and Forensic Anthropology Can Change the Narrative | Damien Huffer

04.06

Ethical and Responsible Data Stewardship in Bioarchaeology | Chris Stantis

11.06

Ethics in bioarchaeology and forensics: Reflections on the scientific value of human skeletal material | Angela Silva Bessa and Hugo F. V. Cardoso

Exploring Digital Ethics and Public Opinion on the Display of Human Ancestors on YouTube | Vanessa Campanacho

17.06

Disabled Peoples' Perspectives on Bioarchaeologies of Disability and Care | Anna Freed

Dying before their time: Ethical implications of applying the concept of frailty to non-adult skeletal remains | Isobel Grimley

A Novel Approach to Analysing Decapitation: The Use of Trauma Analysis for Understanding the Socio-political Context at the Roman Site of Grain | Amy Brooks-Cole